

The Adams conformal projection rounds out a family of tiling maps. We used the others on greeting cards in the 1980s. Adams looks like a Mercator map whose north and south poles have been dragged back from infinity to make Antarctica merely huge rather than boundless.